On Wednesday morning Dr. Smoot, of Austin, delivered his underess to the graduates. the work, and the relations which ought to exist between teacher and taught.

If more foreible, impressive, and therough by fine discourse I have school heard.

The night previous had been devoted to the grand concert. By dusk the chippel was crowded, and as is usual in such assemblies, the children predominated.

Everything passed off very pleasantly, and to all lovers of music the evening must have been delightful, as we were served with choice selections from the best operas, brilliantly executed by highly trained musicans.

To the captious I would say—that the highest courtesy demands more polite attention, well-bred quiet, and kindly fortearance, at a school concertwhich is free to all, and given to piense all—than at any other entertainment.

I am sorry to say that our people have not attained to that high standard or good manners, and many attend such places only to criticise—and always und kindly. To ambitious scholars and the provement except the building of large atone school bouse. Denizes not attained to that high standard of good manners, and many attend such places only to criticise—and always unkindly. To ambitire scholars, and auxious teachers, it is very trying to see bored faces and tired look—, and hear rude satirical remarks from those they are trying so sincerely to entertain and amuse.

When a man pays his money for a reserved seat in a public nail, and is promised a three hours from the muan or acting by processionals, he has a right to cavif some people are so constituted that they cannot rive without it, if he feels himself disapointed. But here you are an invited guest, and as such you are supposed to oring your manners with you.

When you leave them behind, you the work of the best part of yourself; the security of the grand and the beautiful to visit this mountain region.

At night we camped on one of these streams which are so numerous in these hills, and had the satisfaction of sleeping on the ground while the breeze blew almost a storm upon us all night. A good breeze on a hot night is very desirable, but this was too much of a good tuing. Arthur chaimed to have lain awake most of the night, and how much I sient I do not know. I siept I do not know.

At Bianco we found that there had been steady improvement in the way of building and business. Everybody seemed observed and pusiness. Everybody seem ed observed and prosperous. Not a place in the town where whiskey is sold and they appear to be arong quits sell without it. I was informed that there has never been a broken merchant in the place and that the daily saies of all the pusiness i ouses of the town together amount to about $500. Visited the office of the Star Vindicator and learned omce of the Star Vindicator and learned that it had a good prospect of success. In fact it is well spoken of by the people and has become one of their pecessities. On Sunday we attended the Union Sunday school of which our old friend John W. Speer has for many years been the superintendent. The There were 125 teachers and pupils in attendance. The most perfect quiet and order prevailed and all seemed to be in trested. In fact the whole counts at Biauco is thoroughly strouged on the subject of Sunday schools through the labors of Mr. J. P. Lane, the Sunday

On Tuesday morning the 14th I had the astisfiction of tying the marriage knot for your Blanco correspondent.

Mr. Harrie W. Speer The bride was Miss Aons B. Carroll of that place. Harrie is a young man of solid worth and the young couple have a hopeful future before them. At the laying of the foundation of their house an inquisition or reasons, inquired whose house the foundation of their noise an indus-titive men passing, lequired whose house it was to be a Methodist church. Thut man reported the building of a Metho-dist church in Bianco all over the coun-try. It soon, however, assumed the shape not of a church but of a dwelling, shape not of a church but of a dwelling, and so the next report was that it was the Presbyterian parsonage. But at any rate flurrie and his bride have taken postession, and are making them selves at home there.

Having accomplished or mission, and being delighted with our visit we returned to Austin on Wednesday and Thursday.
